

Project | A/B Testing for The Recording Academy

Part 1: A/B Test Design & Identifying Potential Issues

1 In a sentence or two, state the null hypothesis for The Academy's A/B test.

There will be no significant statistical increase from using the test CTA over the control CTA.

2 In a sentence or two, state the alternative hypothesis for The Academy's A/B test.

There will be a significant statistical increase from using the test CTA over the control CTA, suggesting the test CTA results in a higher conversion rate.

Use the A/B Test Sample Size Calculator linked below to help you answer the following questions.

A/B Test Sample Size Calculator

The goal with this test is to increase the conversion rate (this is the percentage of Instagram users who click on the CTA button in the ad) from 3% to 4%.

3 What is the minimum detectable effect associated with that increase in conversion rate?

33%

4 What total sample size is required to reliably detect that level of increase?

6,900

Hint!

Statsig said the total was 7.3k for 33% (3.99% conversion) and 6.9k for 34% (4.02% conversion).

Before launching any A/B test, it's crucial to identify potential risks or confounding factors that could skew the results. As the analyst, you need to be prepared to be asked "How do we know if this test is valid?"

5 Use ChatGPT to generate a list of confounding factors by asking "What factors could skew the results of an A/B test like this, and how might they influence our findings or effect the results?" You might also try "What are common mistakes to avoid when designing an A/B test?"

After reviewing ChatGPT's response, identify at least two confounding factors that could impact the experiment. Write a brief strategy (one-to-two sentences) for how you would mitigate these issues if you were a part of designing a similar A/B test.

Two confounding factors that could affect the results of this A/B test include the day and time the post is made and the appearance of the ad across different types of devices. If the posts are made at different times of day and/or different times of the week (e.g., morning/night, weekend/weekday, etc.), they may experience a natural difference in traffic. To avoid this, we should make sure the posts are made at similar times of the day and week. An ad that looks different on different types of devices (e.g. mobile device vs. desktop) may also be a confounding factor, so we need to make sure the ad is compatible with all types of devices.

Part 2: Results Analysis & Interpretation

Data for the A/B Test was collected, and the results can be found in the `grammy_u` data table. Be sure to consult the Data Dictionary to interpret the results.

| 11 | What is the conversion rate for the test group? | 7% |
| Use the A/B Test Significance Calculator below to help you answer the following questions. | | |
| A/B Testing Significance Calculator | | |
| 12 | Which group performed better, the control or the test group? Are your results statistically significant? | |
| The test group performed better and had statistically significant results due to successfully increasing the conversion rate from 3% to 4%. | | |
| 13 | Based on the results of this test, should The Recording Academy run more ads with the new CTA? Explain why. Remember you can use ChatGPT as your teammate in helping to interpret these results in the context of your hypothesis and the overall goal of increasing GRAMMY U memberships! | |
| Yes, The Recording Academy should run more ads with the test CTA. The data shows that the test CTA brought the conversion rate of GRAMMY U memberships up from 3% to 4%, which was the goal with this A/B test. | | |

| Part 3: Business Implications | |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 14 | If the 'Become a GRAMMY U Member' CTA leads to more GRAMMY U memberships, but potentially higher costs (e.g., more clicks without converting into memberships), how would you balance these factors? What additional data would you need to evaluate whether the increased cost is worth the long-term benefits? |
| In order to evaluate if the cost of maintaining the test CTA is worth the long-term benefits, we would need data on exactly how much that costs compared to how much extra income is brought in by increased membership purchases. We would then need to determine a target profit threshold and make a decision based on whether it can be met under each circumstance. We would also need to look at this from a long-term point of view and consider if losing some profit in the beginning is worth potentially increasing profit further down the line, granted the model is capable of fostering long-term growth. | |
